McClellan for Senator

Your editor voted for John L. McClellan for United States Senator four years ago and expects to do so again this Tuesday. The country is at war; interest in politics is almost zero; and in choosing a senator we look for a man with a good national record in the past and a sound program for the future—with Mr. McClellan filling the bill as good as any.

This is merely a personal opinion. No one on our paper has any connection with politics. The Star never has asked anything of a candidate or an office-holder, would accept nothing if offered. We have treated all candidates alike in our news columns, this election as in all previous elections. . . . for a good newspaper aims to give all men a "fair shake."

There are other good men in the senatorial race besides McClellan. But if I am for him rather than for any other candidate it is because:

1. He seems to stand alone.

2. He is not a part of the controversy surrounding present-day politics in the state and the Congress.

3. He served two terms in Congress from the Sixth District, with distinction, 1935-38.

4. He made an outstanding one-man campaign for the Senate in 1938, polling 135,000 votes.

And when he came to Hope for his campaign address last Tuesday he came alone.

These are days demanding one-man decisions. I believe John L. McClellan will be the same kind of man as a Senator that he is as a campaigner.

The proposed work will extend approximately 450 feet upstream and 500 feet downstream from the bridge approach.

Mitchell said the river during the spring rise cut a deep hole between the Cotton Belt railroad bridge and the highway bridge, slicing off about 150 to 200 feet of the bank and exposing the piling that support the piers to the approach.

"No one can tell what a river will do," he said. "It is a constant fight to control these streams and this plan is believed to be the best at this particular spot."

Mitchell said a similar protective work had been undertaken on the free bridge over the Arkansas river at Pine Bluff and another job would be started soon on a bridge over the Arkansas at Fort Smith. He said the Fort Smith bank caving was so serious that huge jetties would be used in the revetment work.

22nd Midway Oil Producer

By Special Correspondent
Stamps, Ark., July 24—The 22nd producer was added today in the new Midway field of Lafayette county as Barnsdall Oil Company's McClaine No. 2 C SE SW section 13-15-24 flowed of its own accord. Due to a stuck drill collar. Top of the test has been delayed a week porosity was 6359 feet with a total depth of 6465 feet. Casing was set to 6355 feet.

Due to be finished over the weekend is Arkansas Fuel Oil Company's Turner No. 1 C SW SE section 12-15-24 which encountered saturation at 6383 feet with a total depth of 6470 feet. Casing was set to 6469 feet. Other activities of Arkansas Fuel in area include its Creek No. 1 C SE SE section 9-15-24 building roads, the Turner No. 2 SE SE same section clearing location. Barnsdall continues to lead with the largest number of operations for the week. Barnsdall's Powell No. 3 C NE NW section 13-15-24 is drilling below 4400 feet. That company's most recent completion, the Roberts No. 6 C NE NW section 11-15-24 was gauged at 129 barrels per hour on quarter inch choke.

Frankel & Frankel & Riddel Petroleum Corp.'s Bodewau No. 1 C SW NW section 17-15-24 continues to build plant roads.

Many Housewives Buy Large Amounts Meat

By The Associated Press
Housewives in many sections of the east today sought to lay in supplies of meat as markets suddenly faced an acute shortage of beef, pork and veal.

Retailers in parts of New York State said they were forced to "sell some meat we wouldn't have in our stores a few weeks ago, and charge as much as we used to get for the best."

The situation was viewed with pessimism by some independent meat packers although the major packing companies declared earlier that there was no actual shortage and that a temporary lack of supply would be alleviated next week.

Retailers who buy in small quantities found many local packing houses empty, and stores having normally large supplies found the buying unusually heavy for the week end.

Benes Predicts a Peace Offer

London, July 25 —(AP)—President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia's exiled government, urging a second front in Europe in 1942, declared today that the Germans will offer peace to Britain, the United States and Russia by Oct. 15 if they do not score a decisive military success by that time.

"Foolish unacceptable terms" already are being prepared, he said in a talk to Czech soldiers.

Benes spoke as ten London munition workers, who said they represented 4,000 colleagues, took a petition to No. 10 Downing street, the residence of the prime minister, asking for a western front in Europe.

Benes predicted that Hitler's peace offer would not be accepted and if the Russians hold out "and I think they will"—Germany would be exhausted by spring.

"How long the war will last depends upon whether there is a second front in Europe this year," he continued. "I myself desire there should be one and am making every effort to obtain this solution of the question. There is a certain risk connected with it but the risk next year will be even greater."

"If a second front can be established within the next three months to divert a certain proportion of the German forces from the eastern front it is probable that things will develop quickly and we might be home within a year."

Texans Go to Polls Today

Dallas, Tex., July 25 —(AP)—W. Lee O'Daniel staked his meteoric political career today on a Texas primary election in which he seeks a second senatorial term against two formidable opponents—James W. Alfred and Dan Moody, both former governors.

In his final address, O'Daniel sounded the refrain he has used throughout the campaign: "There ain't gonna be no runoff," adding that he would poll 70 to 75 percent of the vote.

In closing his campaign, Alfred, who resigned a $10,000-a-year federal judgeship to run for the senate, replied to O'Daniel: "He's right — there ain't gonna be no runoff. And if there is — he ain't gonna be in it."

Moody predicted there would be a runoff and that he would be in it. Texas laws provide for a runoff election by the two highest candidates in event one does not attain a majority vote in the primary.

Nomination in a Democratic primary is tantamount to election.

A nominee for governor also will be chosen. Coke Stevenson, the incumbent, is running against four other candidates, including Hal H.

Election Party at Star Building Tuesday Night

The Star will hold its customary Election Night Party in front of the newspaper building on South Walnut street Tuesday night, July 28.

Returns from the Democratic preferential primary, in state, district and local races, will be flashed on a big screen across the street, and the usual Election Extra will be issued about midnight. It will be sold in the city, but will be distributed free to mail subscribers in place of the regular Wednesday morning mail edition.

Election officials all over Hempstead county are asked to co-operate by telephoning The Star (Hope 768 Collect) the returns from their precincts as soon as completed Tuesday night.

Says Tax Collection Plan to Be Defeated

Washington, July 25 —(AP)—Senator Taft (R-O) forecast today that the Senate Finance Committee would strike from the House-approved tax bill a proposal to collect individual income taxes by installment deductions from the pay envelopes of the nation's workers.

The senator who has opposed this section of the new $6,271,000,000 tax bill, said that while he had made no canvass of committee sentiment, he believed a majority of members was inclined to vote against the proposal because of the steep increase it would bring in the collection of taxes from individuals in 1943.

The projected collection levy, which would go into effect next January 1, would provide for the deduction by employers of 5 per cent—less some exemptions—of the periodic pay check of approximately 30,000,000 persons who work for wages.

The deductions also would apply to dividends and interest payment. The individual ultimately would pay out no more, since the amount collected in advance would be credited against his regular income tax liability, but during 1943 his tax bill would add up to 24 per cent of his wages in the ordinary brackets.

Maps Found on Enemy Alien

New York, July 25 —(AP)—Aerial photographs and "bomber" maps showing vital spots throughout New York and New Jersey were found in the possession of one of 11 enemy aliens seized in a roundup yesterday.

The photographs, reported today, were taken by the FBI, assistant director of the FBI, reported today. There were 100 such photographs and maps, specifically designed as guides to enemy bombers. Foxworth declared. He added that all the photographs were developed in Germany, leaving no doubt that the Nazi government had copies.

The photographs were described as excellent aerial views, showing such important points as the George Washington bridge, the banks of the Hudson river, airplane factories, war plants, reservoirs and other logical bomber targets.

Foxworth said the alien also had between 50 and 75 similar maps of South and Central America, particularly of Peru and Chile.

Other localities covered by the photographs included the Kenosha reservoir in Westchester county, part of the New York City water supply system, the Hackensack and Passaic rivers in New Jersey and Paterson, N. J.

The aliens seized were nine Germans, one woman, and two Italians. Foxworth said one of the Germans had been an employee in the munitions plant at Kingsland, N.J., which was destroyed in a 1917 explosion.

One of the Italians, the FBI said, acknowledged serving with the Italian army at Tobruk in 1937.

First Exchange of Prisoners

Laureano Marques, Portuguese East Africa, July 23 —(Delayed AP)—The first diplomatic transfer of prisoners between the United States and Japan since the start of the Pacific war was completed here today when more than 1,100 North and South Americans boarded the Swedish liner Gripsholp to take the places vacated by Japanese diplomats and their families brought from America.

The Americans arrived here on the Judders Conte Verce and Asama Maru.

(The Tokyo radio said the Americans were scheduled to sail today (Saturday) from the east African port.)

Soon after moving to the Gripsholp, the Americans were permitted to disembark and tour the city.

The exchange was supervised by the Portuguese foreign office. Four Associated Press correspondents arrived with the group. Following reports of a composite story on conditions in Japan and Japanese-occupied territory written by the correspondents. Some parts of the story are omitted to conform with official requests from Washington that nothing be done which could interfere in the slightest with the welfare or repatriation of Americans still in Japanese-occupied territory. U. S. Bombers Pound German Bases in Africa

—Africa

Cairo, July 25 —(AP)—United States Army bombers in seven daylight raids in a week have wrought heavy damage to the Axis ports of Tobruk and Bengasi in Libya and Suda Bay in Crete, U. S. Army air force headquarters declared today as the RAF added more than 20 additional Axis planes to its fast-increasing tally of enemy craft destroyed or damaged on the ground.

The RAF announced its latest blow at the forward landing-field at El Daba, cost the Axis more than a score of planes ground and three destroyed in the air yesterday.

Since Sunday the field at El Daba has been heavily hit three times and that at Fuha once. Figures on Axis planes destroyed on the ground have totalled more than 80, in addition to some communications which merely have listed "many."

The U. S. Army Air Force headquarters announcement on the American bomber operations for the week ending today said besides heavy damage to the enemy docks and installations, several medium-sized merchant vessels were left in flames and a direct hit set fire to a large ship at Bengasi.

The ground fighting consisted mainly of artillery duels in the central and northern sectors with some patrol activity. In the southern sector there was nothing to report, the communique said.

In addition to the three Axis aircraft shot down in air fights over El Daba, two others crashed in taking off to challenge the RAF bombers, the communique said.

RAF fighters ranged over the battle area in which British troops were consolidating newly won ground and "successfully attacked" enemy vehicles, the communique reported.

Allied planes have been raiding El Daba day and night for several days in an effort to cut down the air support for Rommel's forces.

Torpedo-carrying aircraft of the RAF went across the Mediterranean into the Ionian sea to attack an enemy merchant ship yesterday. The ship was ablaze at the end of the attack and was down at the bow, the communique said.

(A British military commentator in London disclosed that Imperial troops had withdrawn from "one or two positions exposed to heavy enemy artillery fire.")

(Informed military opinion in London was that, although the British retain the initiative in Africa, the arrival of a single Axis convoy could swing the balance to the

Lieutenant Visits Home Boys in Alaska

First Lieutenant L. R. Chandler of the U. S. Army Engineers, Seattle, Wash., stopped off in Hope Saturday noon to report that Hempstead county soldiers stationed in Alaska are well and happy. Lt. Chandler had dinner in Nome May 22 with Major J. M. Duffie, and saw Captain Garnett Martin, Sergeant Johnson and other local men in Alaska, stationed variously at Yakutat, Seward and Nome.

Lt. Chandler urged home folks when writing the boys at these outposts to enliven jokes and other bright sayings collected from newspapers and magazines—anything to give the men a cheery outlook. It is a great morale builder, he said. Above all, do not write gloomy letters, for they depress the men in uniform, who have every right to expect hope and encouragement from the home folks, he concluded.

Destroyer Built in 1942 Launched Today

Quincy, Mass., July 25 —(AP)—The U. S. S. Champlin, one of our destroyers built this year at the Fore River shipyard of the Bethlehem Steel Company, was launched today.

Mrs. Adelaide Champlin Brendel, of Buffalo, N. Y., great-granddaughter of Captain Stephen Champlin, naval hero of the war of 1912 after whom the ship was named, christened the vessel at ceremonies attended by naval officers attached to the yard and a large group of workmen.

Captain Champlin, a native of Kingston, R. I., appointed a sailing master on May 22, 1912, at the age of 23, is credited with firing the first and last shots against the British at the Battle of Lake Erie.

Allies Cut Off Jap Supplies

—War in Pacific

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, July 25 —(AP)—Steady Allied dive bombing has broken off the landing of Japanese supplies in the newly occupied Buna-Gona area of New Guinea and several fully loaded enemy vessels have withdrawn northward under naval escort, a communique announced today.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said 45,000 pounds of explosives and incendiaries were dropped yesterday on troops, invasion barges, stores and installations in that region low on the northeast coast of the Papuan peninsula.

Large fires were started and an anti-aircraft battery was silenced, the communique reported. "A number of the enemy's cargo vessels have been unable to unload being forced to withdraw to the north under cover of naval forces," it said.

Eighteen Japanese bombers and a 16-plane fighter escort were reported, meanwhile, to have struck ineffectively at the airfield of Port Moresby, advanced Allied base on New Guinea's south coast 110 miles below Buna.

"There were no casualties and only slight damage," it was said. The dive-bomber which is playing a big part in allied operations over New Guinea is the single-engine Douglas A-24 first used by the U. S. Navy and then by the Army, officers said.

Buna, surrounded by grassy plains suitable for air fields, controls the only passable trail to Port Moresby. Natural obstacles halt vehicles only 26 miles from Buna at the government station of Kokoda.

One German thrust across the river, a natural defense line before the lower Caucasus, was frustrated and the infantry regiment in the van was wiped out, a communique announced at midnight.

Later advices, however, said that in a second big push, supported by heavy forces, small units reached the south shore and dug in. These were declared "being dealt with," but the situation indicated an ominous parallel to the original German crossing of the upper Don at Voronezh.

Counterattacks were declared to have battered the Red Army position in some sectors before Rostov and the city's approaches were reported dotted with thousands of German dead, but the numerically superior invaders occupied several new positions to the south to establish a four-way offensive.

"On one sector the Germans succeeded in breaking into the positions of our troops," the Soviet Information Bureau said. "In fierce battles which frequently developed in hand-to-hand fighting our men annihilated over 2,000 Germans, set fire to 18 German tanks and destroyed three self-propelled guns and 14 machine guns."

A Nazi advance also was reported in another section of the Rostov zone, but this was declared to have been made only at a disproportionate cost "after all the defenders of these positions died the death of the brave, fighting to the last drop of blood for their native land."

German resistance at Voronezh at the northern extremity of the tense Don front was reported stronger, but the Red army on the western bank struck to the outskirts of a large populated place southwest of the city. The Germans were trying to throw new bridges across the river but Russian artillery was hampering every such effort.

U. S. Bombers Taking Part in Blasting Nazis

—Europe

By EDDY GILMORE
Moscow, July 25 —(AP)—United States bombers took part in the desperate Russian defense of the Caucasus today as the Germans drove dangerous wedges into the forts guarding Rostov and struck over near vital Stalingrad in an offensive that reached the middle Don.

A U. S. source whose name may not be divulged said the swift twin engine Douglas bombers were flying wing to wing with Russian planes in a fierce pounding at German tanks, motorized columns and men who were seeking to engulf the southern Don steppes.

Presumably the planes were flown by Russians although the Moscow dispatch did not specifically say so. There have been previous reports of U. S. planes being flown to the Don front, and going directly into action. The U. S. Army has a strong air force in the middle east, and presumably this command sent the planes.

The point on the middle Don which the German vanguards reached was not specified in battle dispatches. At one sector, nearest Stalingrad, the great elbows of the Don and Volga form a 45-mile bottleneck.

Dispatches said the Germans had broken through one sector of the front in the region of Rostov, great oil port on the Don delta just off the sea of Azov.

The Germans established a hazardous bridgehead across the Don near Stalingrad, 120 miles up the river from Rostov.

The Army newspaper Red Star said vast air battles were being fought over wide areas of the treeless Don steppes. The dispatch said the Germans were availing themselves of the flat terrain to establish airbases swiftly near the front lines.

Fighters principally were based at the front but the swiftly built airbases also were used by transport planes bringing up fuel and ammunition. A Soviet raid on one of these fields was said to have destroyed 28 of the huge Junkers-52 transports.

Without comment, Red Star clarified Lenin's words to the Russian army:

"Fight to the last drop of blood, comrades. Keep on for every inch of land. Be firm until the end."

"Only selfless operations, courage and self-sacrifice by our troops will save Rostov from the Fascist invasion," the military newspaper Red Star said.

BANNERS FLYING

By MARY RAYMOND

Copyright, 1942
NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Christie, one of the Cotton twins, comes down from her first solo flight to find Bart Sanderson at the airport. Christie is in love with Bart, a military student and air enthusiast, but he doesn't approve of her flying. The fact that she's rich doesn't make it any easier. Driving Christie home, Bart mentions he has met a girl on the train, Sandra Rydall, who is coming to live in Westwood. Christie senses the new girl is pretty—therefore dangerous.

COMPETITION ARRIVES

CHAPTER II

CHRISTIE, in Bart's arms, whirled past her mother and Miss Sarah Lancaster. She gave them her most heart-warming smile, because she felt sorry for them both—sitting there against the wall. For her mother, still pretty at 42, her romantic girlhood so far in the background... and for Miss Lancaster, who had never had any romance at all.

"Gosh, what a dull evening," Tommy had cut in.

"I think it's rather nice, myself," Christie answered. "Why the sweet brotherly attention?"

"Well, to be honest, I need a little extra money—all you have in your evening bag."

"Tommy are you always broke? Anyway, everything's free. A lobster plate, I'm hearing."

"The perfect Family Tone," Tommy laughed. "Let's switch to something pleasant. And I do mean pleasant. There's a girl here—well, nothing quite like her has ever set foot in this town before."

She came in late with the Robb Nortons. She and I are going to slip out at intermission. I promised to show her our most spectacular night spot. She's really keen about it."

Could she be the same girl Bart had been talking about? Of course she was! "She looks pretty casual," Bart had said.

"The next moment, Bart had cut in again.

Suddenly, the music stopped abruptly. Then as quickly swung into "God Bless America."

"Good tune," Bart said, as the dancing stopped. They were standing now by the arch which separated the ballroom from the enclosed porch. Tommy and a girl were dancing on the dimly-lighted porch. They danced past Christie and Bart and into the ballroom; and as though completely unaware of the sensation they were causing, double-stepped the martial rhythm with perfect timing.

THE girl wore a bright red frock, with a huge skirt that emphasized her slim waist. Her eyes were enormous and velvety black.

"Tommy's a fool," Bart said. "If this had been Europe, he would have been rushed off by the military police. He's pretty lucky he lives in America."

"Tommy!" Christie echoed indignantly. "What about that girl? She should have brought some respect for this country when she came from Europe!"

Bart spoke slowly. "I think it's rather unfair to judge a person so quickly."

Christie's anger fell from her. "Perhaps it is," she said in a low tone. "He has realized that not all her anger was directed against the new girl because of the exhibition. She disliked her because she was beautiful and dangerous—because Bart obviously didn't dislike her. Now, she was beating a retreat because Bart might be forced into open championship of the other girl."

"It's just that everybody was looking at Tommy as though he were a traitor," Christie said. Her voice trembled a little.

"Oh, now look here. Aren't you getting a little hysterical about the whole thing? Nobody is going to spoil this evening for me. Sit this out with me, Christie. I've something to tell you."

Christie's personal sky was swept clear of storm clouds. She thought, as Bart piloted her toward the Palm Room: "It's silly

"I'm glad I met you," Sandra said. "I wanted to see what you were like." "I hope I haven't disappointed you," Christie said sweetly.

to be this much in love." A look from Bart could lift her up or drop her down. Right now she was on top of the world. Bart had something to tell her! They had reached the dim, secluded Palm Room; and Bart had caught her close to him.

"Christie, I had it all planned out—to ask you to marry me. Dr. Atwell wants me to come in with him, as soon as I finish my internship."

"Dr. Atwell," Christie breathed. Chief surgeon at the near-by Lakeville hospital, head of his clinic, and one of the famous men in his field.

"Yes," Bart's voice was low and tense. "But I can't do it, Christie. This war business has got me. I'm going to get in there and pitch."

"I'll wait," Christie whispered. "Oh, waiting—it might be a long time. But you will stand by, Christie?"

"You know I will!" He kissed her again, and then released her. A low, amused laugh had startled them.

"Hello, soldier."

SANDRA RYDALL had come close to them. She was nearer Christie, but her eyes were on Bart.

"Hello," Bart said, adding "Christie, this is Sandra Rydall." He turned to Christie: "Shall we tell her?"

"Why not?" Christie thought, happily. It would be just as well to tell her now, before she could get any more ideas about the new girl.

"I'm the seventh daughter of a seventh son," Sandra said lightly. "That makes me know things without being told. Besides I was only two feet away when you sprang the big news."

"Oh," Christie's face burned. The girl was bold, shameless.

"But it wasn't news to me," Sandra continued carelessly. "You see he had told me before. You're still strong for the Air Corps, I guess."

Christie's shocked surprise was succeeded by pure fury. If she spoke now, she would certainly betray her indignation and contempt for this girl and her cheap tactics. She did not speak, waiting for Bart to put the stranger in her place.

But Bart was smiling. He had lighted a cigaret and the brief glow showed the amused gleam in his eyes.

"You evidently think I don't know my mind."

"People change them," Sandra said slowly.

"Well, it's still the Air Corps with me," Bart answered. He added, "and I don't change my mind."

"Tommy had come up. 'Hello,' he greeted them. 'Where did I lose you, Sandra? One minute you were standing by me and the next you were the little girl who wasn't there. You haven't forgotten we are leaving at intermission?'"

"I only forget things I don't want to remember," Sandra replied. She turned to Christie. "I'm glad I met you," she said. "I wanted to see what you were like."

"I hope I haven't disappointed you," Christie said sweetly.

"Not at all," the other girl answered. "I think I knew exactly what you would be like." Only her smile robbed the words of malice, and Christie had the feeling that the smile was for Bart's benefit.

She waited until Sandra and Tommy had left the room. Then, she turned to Bart. "She knew—about your plans for joining up. About me!"

"What's wrong with that?" Bart was looking at her in astonishment. "We were on the train several hours together. It was natural to discuss things we were interested in. She's a direct young person, and she asked if there was a girl at the end of the line. I said there was. Then, we got to talking about the war, and she found out it was the air end of it for me."

She could see that he was waiting, half bewildered, for her reply. She must put this hurt back of her. Men didn't think about things the way women did.

"Does that clear things up?" Christie nodded. She loved him—the war, and her country's emergency—these were the big concerns.

She would not let Sandra or anyone or anything undermine her happiness. Only she hoped she wouldn't run into her again.

Nation Warned to Look for Saboteurs

Washington, July 25—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, asked the nation today to be on the lookout for three men identified as expert German saboteurs who he said might come to the United States.

The three have been trained in the German sabotage school and have received orders from the Nazi high command to come to this country to destroy vital war industries, Hoover said in a statement.

They were associated with the eight Nazi saboteurs now on trial before a military commission sitting secretly in the Justice Department, the FBI chief said.

The men were identified by Hoover as Wally Kappel, 37, a lieutenant in the intelligence section of the German army and an instructor in the sabotage school near Berlin; Joseph Schmidt, alias Paul Schardt, alias Jerry Swenson, and Reinhold Rudolph Barth, 25, all natives of Germany.

Prescott Boy Believed Missing
Staff Sergeant George S. Wylie, who has served in the Philippine Islands at the time of the final surrender is believed to be missing, even though no official report from the War Department has been received by his family.

In an attempt to locate Wylie the local Red Cross Chapter received a letter from National Headquarters, station that "Sergeant George S. Wylie had not been reported as a casualty through July 10, 1942. When lists of prisoners from the Philippines are received, we will clear the name of Sgt. Wylie, and send you any additional information available."

Wylie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Wylie of Prescott. He is a graduate of the Prescott high school and has been in the ground-force of the Army Air Corps for about four years. The last word his family had from him was a wire Christmas day.

Tea Is Friday Event
Brilliant among the past week's entertainments was the tea given Friday afternoon by Mrs. Hubert Whitaker, Mrs. Norman Whitaker, Misses Margaret, Mary Gail and Helen Whitaker, at the Hubert Whitaker home, honoring Mrs. Poindexter Whitaker, lovely bride.

Guests who called for tea were met at the door by Mrs. Hubert Whitaker, and received in the living room by Mrs. Poindexter Whitaker and Mrs. Norman Whitaker. Pink and white summer flowers filled the house for the occasion.

A mirrored reflector, encircled by maiden-hair fern, centered the exquisitely appointed tea-table. In the center of the reflector was a crystal arch, made up of white peri-winkles, which were also used on each side of the arch. A miniature bride and groom completed the garden scene. White candles in crystal holders, burned on the table. The bride motif and the pink and white color scheme were also stressed in the dainty refreshments.

Misses Mary Gail, Helen and Margaret Whitaker served in the dining room. The honoree was given a beautiful gift of crystal by the hostesses.
